It was the custom of the Indians to bury distinguished persons of their own tribe with the head elevated to nearly a sitting posture, and to encase the body in a stone box. The white man must not take it from my people; but let my good brother give to them the Island Manwallaminh and may the dove of peace descend, and hover over the people of my fathers and our white neighbors forever! A saddening wail, mingled with murmurs of discontent, rose upon the still air, and Manatamany essayed to give utterance to these incoherent mutterings; but the shouts of the colonists drowned his voice: Winona must not, shall not die! She shall live to bless us and you! We ask no sacrifice; we only ask, that if it please Manatamany, Winona may be adopted as our sister, and be to us, as to...

Our famed 'Water Gap' is formed by Middle Delaware River's passage between low forested mountains and rocky mountain ridges. The famed 'Water Gap' in the Kittatinny Ridge is formed by Middle Delaware River's passage between low forested mountains and rocky mountain ridges. ÆœEventually, all things merge into one, and a river The Delaware Water Gap is a water gap on the border of the U.S. states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania where the Delaware River cuts through a large ridge of the Appalachian Mountains. The gap constitutes the southern portion of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, which is used primarily for recreational purposes, such as rafting, canoeing, swimming, fishing, hiking, and rock climbing. Soon, Delaware Water Gapâ€™s popularity as a resort area had become well-known throughout the northeastern United States. The Civil War led to a decline in the budding resort industry, but afterward, it recovered and more accommodation facilities were built including the Water Gap House which opened its doors in June 1872, rivaling the Kittatinny in size and splendor. With the railroads now also promoting the Gap as a destination, 16 more hotels sprung up in the village of Delaware Water Gap by the centuryâ€™s end. Additional rail lines, such as the New York, Susquehanna, and Western served the Ne Delaware Water Gap, located in Monroe County in Northeastern Pennsylvania, and named after a magnificent natural wonder carved by the Delaware River. Our small, quaint borough (founded in 1793) sits in the very heart of the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, one of America's most popular vacation destinations, graced with forests, lakes, trails and mountains. Delaware Water Gap is approximately 3 miles of roads with a 2018 estimated population of 747. We work hard to be a resource for our community. Have ideas about how we could do that better?
